Celebrating the last day of school

Mark the end of a school year in a special way as it honors the transitions in our children’s lives. Here are some ideas you might use to mark this big milestone for your children:

1. Create an end of the school year tradition with your kids. Go out for ice cream, have a special family dinner, give them a gift certificate from the local bookstore, or take the day off from work and surprise them at school with a car full of balloons.

2. Talk about what your child would like to release from the year – an unpleasant experience, mistakes, regrets. You might even encourage him/her to write these things on a piece of paper and then bury it in the backyard. He/She can let it go and move on into the summer – unencumbered.

3. Discuss upcoming events that lie ahead in the warm relaxing months. Find free time in your summer calendar. Support your child as he pursues his/her hobbies. Does he/she have a hobby? The school year is full of achievement-oriented duties so downshift into other interests this summer.

4. Make your child a custom designed diploma on the computer or using your artistic flair. Create it from your heart honoring all the things you are proud of from the passing school year.
Express your love in the yearbook

Record forever your fond thoughts and love for your children at this stage of their lives by being a benefactor in Southville International School and Colleges (SISC) Yearbook, “Stars, Hearts, and Laurels SY 2008-2009.” You can do it through Greetings, Advertisements, Sponsorships or Donations. Attached to this bulletin is the yearbook solicitation form. You may also call the Public Relations Office at 825-2358, or 820-0935 and the project will be explained to you in detail.

ILC and ECED host Open Houses
