What is the Student Analytic Report?

To keep parents connected to their child's learning activities during the pandemic, SISC released a Student Analytic Report specifying information on how their child is doing at school. The report is an essential component of the e-learning process so parents can support their child from home. The school's learning management system, Moodle, continuously collects data about students' engagement and performance, and their participation in their Moodle courses.

In the report, parents can see their child's work and interaction with his/her lesson content and activities. It provides a checklist of what a student has done so far so parents can track their own child's progress in the major subject areas. They can check if their child has viewed a specific lesson, participated in a particular activity, or completed a certain quiz. The report can alert them in case their child is neglecting some course materials so they can remind him/her to take full advantage of the online resources his/her teachers are providing.
